

Abstract of the Disclosure

Systems, methods, and device are provided for device monitoring. One method embodiment includes transmitting a network management message to a device. The method includes collecting response information from the device
5 based on the network management message. The method further includes receiving unsolicited information from the device. The response information and the unsolicited information are analyzed according to a set of heuristics to provide a health measurement of the device.